Jeannie focuses her practice on securities law, litigating on behalf of investors and advising members of the securities industry on regulatory and compliance matters.

In tune with the ever-changing securities landscape, Jeannie has the experience to tackle challenges facing individuals and entities from both a litigation and compliance perspective.

She represents investors, both individuals and entities, in securities litigation, and also counsels members of the securities industry on important regulatory and compliance matters.

Jeannie's securities litigation work centers on the representation of claims between public investors and brokerage firms, stockbrokers and investment advisors in FINRA and AAA arbitrations, as well as in state and federal courts.

She also represents individuals and entities in the securities industry in enforcing or defending restrictive covenant claims, and provides counsel to individuals, brokerage firms, and registered investment advisers on compliance matters, employment issues, and in regulatory investigations.
