Michael helps closely held businesses move forward by providing counsel on transactions and general corporate matters.

Michael works with small to mid-sized businesses and other entities to provide needed counsel on a wide range of transactions and general corporate matters.

Companies often call on him at the initial stages of development for counsel on entity formation and help with organizational documents. Michael also works with a variety of developing and established businesses to prepare and review business contracts, and has experience drafting and negotiating company sale agreements.

He also drafts and reviews intellectual property sale and licensing agreements for companies and universities, and represents banks and borrowers in commercial lending and financing transactions.
