Ed provides key support to firm clients on a variety of real estate matters, including leasing transactions, development projects, and acquisitions.

Prior to joining McCAUSLAND Keen + Buckman, Ed spent seven years at a large Pennsylvania real estate investment trust, including three years as in-house transactional real estate counsel.

Ed employs this practical experience to provide guidance on a range of real estate transactions, representing developers, landlords and tenants in the drafting, negotiation and execution of leases, redevelopment projects, refinancings, acquisitions and dispositions throughout the United States. In addition, he has considerable experience reviewing and negotiating a range of commercial contracts. Ed's clients include national retailers, publicly traded companies, privately held organizations and individuals.

In his role in-house, Ed handled more than 1 million square feet of retail leasing transactions, provided fundamental support on redevelopment projects, and conducted extensive due diligence on property refinancing, acquisitions and dispositions totaling more than $500 million.
